

The Broadcast Flag is all about trying to protect an outdated business model of media conglomerates at the expense of the individual consumer. I like being able to record a program when I'm not home and watch it later. The Broadcast Flag is aimed at removing my ability to do this.

Although I don't believe in illegal copies of media, the Broadcast Flag will be cracked and the illegal copies of media will be made and shared on the Internet. So in the end it won't work anyway. Why hurt the consumer so much for nothing?

I urge you not to use the Broadcast Flag or mandate its use in electronic equipment as a voting U.S. taxpayer.

Lindsay Leeds